Performance Notes

	senza misura		slide trill/tremolo
	gradual change from one mode of play to another		lip trill/tremolo
	accelerando/ritardando		rapid double-tonguing
	portamenti		flutertongue
	oscillating portamento: width at peak indicated (ranging from 1/4 to 3/4 tone above/below central pitch).		sudden dynamic change fermata continuum (shortest to longest) durational continuum in senza misura sections: arranged from shortest to longest (precise durations ad libitum ).
	continuum of rests/breaks within senza misura section: values arranged from shortest to longest (precise durations ad libitum ).

Accidentals apply only to the notes they immediately precede, with the exception of repeated pitches.

It is important to adhere to the timings indicated in the senza misura sections in order to achieve the proper pacing of the music: each line of music should be approximately 17 to 18 seconds duration, and should never be less than 15 nor more than 20 seconds in duration.

Straight mute and plunger required; all mute changes must be made with as little disruption to the musical flow as possible.

Program Note

Der Heroszupfer (The Hero-tugger) is the eighteenth in a series of short works for solo instrument based upon characters from Der Ohrenzeuge: Fünfzig Charaktere (Earwitness: Fifty Characters), written in 1974 by the Bulgarian-born British-Austrian novelist Elias Canetti (1905-1994). Canetti's distinctive studies incorporate poetic imagery, singular insights, and unabashed wordplay to create fifty ironic paradigms of human behavior. This collection of works, begun in 1997, was inspired by the vividly surreal depictions of Canetti's characters and includes works for contrabass, violin, bass flute, ocarina, contrabassoon, glass harmonica, alto saxophone, trumpet, percussion, bass saxophone, guitar, piccolo, organ, basset horn, and violoncello, among others. In Canetti's depiction of this character, "the hero-tugger potters around monuments and tugs on the trousers of heroes.... [He] jumps out, heaves himself skillfully onto the pedestal, and stands next to the hero.... He senses the greatness passing over to him and he shudders. But if he works hard... the day will come, the radiant day, when he will heave himself up in a powerful surge and, in front of the whole world, he will scornfully spit on the hero's head."

Der Heroszupfer was composed in July 2019 for trombonist Andrew Glendening, who first performed the work at Northern Illinois University on 23 January 2020.

Der Heroszupfer

(The Hero-tugger)

The hero-tugger potters around monuments and tugs on the trousers of heroes. They may be of stone or of bronze, but in his hands they come alive. Some get up in the middle of traffic, they had best be left alone. But the ones in parks are the very ones we need. He sneaks around them or else he lurks in the bushes. When the last visitor has gone away, the hero-tugger jumps out, heaves himself skillfully onto the pedestal, and stands next to the hero. He remains there a while, mustering his courage. He is full of respect and does not reach in right away. He also thinks about where the best place would be. It is not enough to put his hand on a curve, he has to hold something in his fingers, otherwise he cannot tug: he needs folds. When he has one, he does not let go for a long time, he feels as if he had it in his teeth. He senses the greatness passing over to him and he shudders. Now he knows what he really is and what he could do. Now he makes up his mind again, now he tugs hard, now he glows with strength, he will begin tomorrow.

The hero-tugger does not climb any higher, that would be inappropriate. He could heave himself up to the stone shoulder and whisper something into the hero's ear. He could pull his ear and reproach him for various things. That would be the height of infamy. He contents himself with the modest place that is proper for him. He is still clutching folds in the trousers. But if he works hard, never misses a night, and tugs more and more firmly, the day will come, the radiant day, when he will heave himself up in a powerful surge and, in front of the whole world, he will scornfully spit on the hero's head.
